1. Legislative Redistricting Committee meetings will be open to the public.
2. The public may obtain all Legislative Redistricting Committee meeting materials online.
3. The Legislative Redistricting Committee may not consider a proposed redistricting plan or a change to a plan that does not comply with the redistricting principles adopted by the committee or the requirements of law.
4. Any resident of Utah may draw a redistricting plan using the public online redistricting tool.
5. Any resident of Utah may use the public online redistricting tool to submit a complete redistricting plan to the Legislative Redistricting Committee. A complete plan means a plan that meets the redistricting principles that are adopted by the Legislative Redistricting Committee.
6. Any resident of Utah may present a complete redistricting plan that the resident submitted using the public online redistricting tool at a meeting of the Legislative Redistricting Committee that is held in the region of the state where person who submitted the plan resides.
7. Any legislator may direct redistricting staff to draw a redistricting plan if the legislator receives authorization from one of the committee chairs and the legislator is present while the plan is drawn. A committee chair will not unreasonably deny a legitimate request.
8. To prevent unauthorized access to draft redistricting plans, the staff redistricting tool may only be operated by redistricting committee staff.
9. Political data may not be included on either the public online redistricting tool or the staff redistricting tool. Political data should not be shown or discussed at Legislative Redistricting Committee meetings or with redistricting committee staff.
10. The general location of incumbents may be included on both the public online redistricting tool and the staff redistricting tool.
